ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The National Gender and Equality Commission (NGEC) whose main mandate is the promotion of gender equality and freedom from discrimination has the key function under the NGEC Act 2011 to coordinate, and facilitate, mainstreaming of issues of gender, persons with disability and other marginalized groups in national development and advise government on the above.

In line with this function the NGEC coordinates the National Gender Based Violence (GBV) Working Group, which is a working group that consists of various implementing agencies (state and non-state actors), that convenes to discuss prevention and response mechanisms to address Gender Based Violence.

The National Keeping the Promise End Gender Based Violence Campaign is the endeavor of the National Gender Based Violence working group efforts to prevent and respond to Gender Based Violence in Kenya. The overarching goal of the campaign is reduction of Gender Based Violence through development and implementation of effective and efficient prevention and response strategies.

This handbook seeks to clarify the roles of the various duty bearers in relation to Gender Based Violence. This is in line with the main objective of the National campaign, which is envisioned to strengthen action and accountability, by state and non-state actors, on their mandate in relation to Gender Based Violence work. The first edition of this handbook was published in 2015. This second edition published in 2017 incorporates changes that have taken place and lessons learned during the 2-year period. It contains a special feature which is the role of the various duty bearers in relation to GBV in politics.

I wish to thank all the members of the National GBV Working Group for their hard work, commitment and dedication to the elimination of Gender Based Violence in the country, and for trusting us to provide leadership to the Working group and the Campaign.

I would like to thank the UN Women for their financial and technical support towards the development of the first edition of this handbook.

Finally, I would like to thank Coffey International through the “Jamii Thabiti” Programme for financial and technical support towards the development of this second edition of the Handbook, which is a review of the first edition.

‘I can, you can, together we can end Gender Based Violence’.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Gender Based Violence (GBV)

Gender Based Violence (GBV) is violence that is directed against a person on the basis of their gender. Any act of gender-based violence that results in physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivations of liberty, whether occurring in public or private life¹ ” is regard as Gender based Violence. Further Gender Based Violence also includes economic deprivation and isolation which may cause eminent harm to safety, health and well-being. ²

Gender Based Violence is based on socially assigned (gender) roles and responsibilities between males and females ascribed by society. The term “Gender” is a concept that refers to the social differences between women and men that have been constructed, learned and changeable over time and have wide variations both within and between cultures. Gender as a social construct can be seen as the allocation of roles, attitudes and values that are deemed by the community to be appropriate for each sex. These roles define power relations between men and women regarding who makes decisions and who controls resources as well as the status women and men, boys and girls hold in the society. The learned constructs are reinforced through interactions in the home, community and institutions.

Gender Based Violence affects women, girls, men and boys; however, women and girls are disproportionately affected by GBV as a direct correlation between women and girl’s subordinate status in society and their greater susceptibility to violence.

The forms of GBV are sexual violence, physical violence, emotional and psychological violence, harmful traditional practices, trafficking in persons and socio-economic violence. Each type of Gender Based Violence has manifestations in several forms as seen below the list is not exhaustive.

1.2 Sexual Violence:

This includes; Rape, attempted rape, defilement, incest, sexual abuse, sexual exploitation, sodomy, pornography, forced prostitution, sexual violence as a weapon of war and torture and trafficking for sexual exploitation.

¹ UN Declaration on Elimination of Violence Against Women

² General Assembly Resolution on the Elimination of Domestic Violence Against women

1.3 Physical Violence:

This includes; Physical assault, beating, battering, trafficking and slavery.

1.4 Emotional/Psychological Violence:

This include; Abuse/humiliation, stalking, sexual harassment and confinement, lack of support which may cause harm to health, safety and well-being of a person entitled to the support, name calling, intimidation, threats, and intimate partner violence.

1.5 Harmful Traditional Practices:

They include; Female Genital Mutilation (FGM), Forced circumcision, Early Marriage, Forced Marriage, Infanticide and/or Neglect, widow inheritance and disinheritance³.

Gender-based violence constitutes a breach of the fundamental right to life, liberty, security, dignity, equality between women and men, non-discrimination and physical and mental integrity.

1.6 Economic abuse/violence:

Economic abuse/violence include unreasonable deprivation of economic or financial resources which one is entitled to including household necessities, medical expenses, school fees, rent, mortgage etc.

1.7 Gender based Violence in Politics:

Gender based violence in politics includes political harassment committed against those in active public life and can be economic, psychological, sexual, and physical. Gender based violence in politics can take many other forms including physical and psychological violence, threats or intimidation.

1.8 Violence against Women in Politics

Violence against women in politics may take many forms, including sexist stereotypes and images portrayed in the media, which focus on women’s bodies, sexuality and traditional social roles, rather than their competence, capacity and contributions as leaders. Violence against women in politics also include pressure to resign from their posts on the basis of gender, or verbal threats, harassment, or intimidated because they are women in politics.

³ Categorization of forms of Gender Based Violence from the Draft National Policy to Prevention and Response to Gender Based Violence.

2.0 CONSEQUENCES OF GBV

Gender based Violence has serious consequences, which are far reaching. GBV survivors are at high risk of severe and long-lasting health problems, which could be physical or psychological in nature. These include permanent physical disabilities, erosion of self-esteem, loss of productivity, costs of health care, unwanted pregnancies, infections and even death. At societal level, gender based violence can lead to breakage of families, homelessness, dispossession and destitution. Gender based Violence can lead to trauma due to social stigma and rejection, unsafe abortion. In addition, Gender based Violence has legal and judicial costs.

In politics and public life, gender based violence limits aspirants especially women and youth in accessing political opportunities and discourages or prevents them from exercising their political rights, including their rights as voters, candidates, party supporters or public officials. It also negates the gains made in the quest to enhance gender equality in politics and threatens democracy.

Effective strategies like duty bearers responding and preventing the vice through reliable public services, rights awareness and options available can decrease the impact of gender based violence in the society. On the other hand, insensitive response to reported cases of gender-based violence like disbelief, apathy, re-victimization and blame of survivor can lead to escalation of the vice and under-reporting.

3. CONTEXT

3.1 About The Keeping the Promise End GBV Campaign

The “Keeping the Promise End Gender Based Violence Campaign” seeks to provoke and sustain a transformative shift in perceptions towards Gender Based Violence from a culture of tolerance and normalization of Gender Based Violence to a new orientation that affirms accountability and sustainable remedies. The theme of the campaign is ‘Prevent and Respond to Gender Based Violence and Protect survivors’. The campaign envisages implementation in 3 phases.

In the first year of implementation, the platform envisaged holding duty bearers to account in relation to prevention and response to Gender Based Violence. In this regard the platform created through the campaign in seeking opportunities for strengthening Gender Based Violence prevention and response strategies, identified the need to interrogate the capacity of various actors to effectively deal with Gender Based Violence in all its manifestations and align practices with viable strategies and transformative goals.

In the second year (2016) of implementation, the campaign focused on survivors.

In the third year of implementation, (2017) the campaign while focusing on the community, will place emphasis on prevention and response to gender based violence in politics in anticipation of the 2017 general elections.

3.2 Objectives of the Campaign

- To strengthen action and accountability by state and non- state actors on their mandate in relation to GBV work;
- To profile the achievements, opportunities, challenges, emerging trends and gaps pertaining to GBV work in Kenya;
- To influence implementation of the various policies and legislations on GBV in Kenya through dissemination and awareness creation, and give recommendations to the government;
- To assess, analyze and strengthen existing policy, legal and service delivery infrastructure for the prevention and response to GBV in emergencies;
- To engage communities focusing on men, boys, women and girls in negating the culture of normalization and acceptance of GBV.

The platform created through the campaign explores opportunities for strengthening Gender Based Violence prevention and response strategies through emerging policy and legislative frameworks and institutions. The Keeping the promise to end GBV campaign was launched on the 10th December 2014. The day was befitting as it was on international Human Rights Day and in commemoration of the 16 days of activism. The campaign is an initiative of the national GBV sub-cluster working group and is being spearheaded by the National Gender and Equality Commission. The campaign uses the human rights based approach framework and does not discriminate against any segment of the population. The campaign steered by the National Gender and Equality Commission, has so far been launched in 17 Counties and the work continues with the intention of campaign being launched in all the 47 Counties. It is foreseen that the implementation will be extended into the new county governments to be formed after the August 2017 elections.

4.0 LEGAL FRAMEWORK ON GBV IN KENYA

The Legal Aid act makes provisions for:

- Providing affordable, accessible, sustainable, credible and accountable legal aid services to indigent persons in Kenya in accordance with the Constitution.
- Providing a legal aid scheme to assist indigent persons to access legal aid.
- Promoting legal awareness.
- Supporting community legal services by funding justice advisory centers, education, and research.
- Promoting alternative dispute resolution methods that enhance access to justice in accordance with the Constitution.

4.2 International and Regional Instruments

Apart from the national laws mentioned above, Kenya is also a signatory to several international and regional instruments (treaties and declarations) that prohibit Gender Based Violence. By virtue of Article 2(6) of the Constitution of Kenya, 2010 these international obligations that have been ratified by Kenya become part of Kenyan law. These include the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDH), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), the Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (1984), the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Child (CRC), the Beijing Platform for Action (BPFA), UN Resolution 1325, the UN Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons Especially Women and Children, The ILO Convention 182 on the Worst Forms of Child Labor; and The Optional Protocol on the Convention of the Rights of the Child on Child Trafficking, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) and violence prevention as well as the 1951 Refugee Convention. At the regional level, the Protocol to the Africa Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights on the Rights of Women in Africa (ACHPRW) (Maputo Protocol), the Maputo plan of action, the Solemn Declaration on Gender Equality in Africa (2004), the International Conference of the Great Lakes Region Protocol; and The African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child (ACRWC).

4.3 Policy Framework

4.3.1 National Policy on Gender and Development, 2011

<http://www1.uneca.org/Portals/ngm/Documents/GenderPolicy.pdf> –

- This is a comprehensive overall framework for guiding gender mainstreaming within the different sectors and line ministries involved in development to allow for them to participate in the sectors and benefit from the development.
- The framework is under review to align it to the constitution of Kenya 2010.

4.3.2 Sessional Paper No. 2 of May 2006 on Gender Equality and Development

http://www1.uneca.org/Portals/ngm/Documents/Gender_Mainstreaming%20Action%20Plan%20final%20-Apr08.pdf

- This is in tandem with the National Policy on Gender and Development and providing a framework for gender mainstreaming and outlining strategies of implementing programmes in varying sectors such as agriculture, health, education, environmental, legal and information communication technology (ICT).

4.3.3 National Framework toward Response and Prevention of Gender Based Violence in Kenya 2015

- The framework provides a strategy for effective coordinating the various State and non-State actors' responses to domestic violence in Kenya.

4.3.4 The Kenya Vision 2030

<http://www.vision2030.go.ke/>

- This Kenya Vision 2030 is a long-term policy plan for accelerating transformation of Kenya into an industrializing middle income nation by 2030.
- It acknowledges that cases of GBV are increasing and lays out strategies to reduce the same and the vulnerabilities that surround it.

4.3.5 National Guidelines on the Management of Sexual Violence

<http://www.svri.org/nationalguidelines.pdf>

- The guidelines establish government standards of service provision which include counseling, treatment and management of injuries, sexually transmitted diseases, PEP, HIV care and pregnancy preventions.
- Provide detailed information on management of sexual violence in a manner involving several parties and at several stages including information on steps to be taken when treating a survivor of sexual violence, like preservation of evidence for court use, issues of psycho-social support and other ethical issues.

4.3.6 The National Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) framework on sexual violence

<http://www.ngeckeny.org/Downloads/National-ME-Framework-towards-the-Prevention-Response-to-SGBV-in-Kenya.pdf>

- The National Multi-Sectoral Monitoring and Evaluation Framework for Response and Prevention of Gender and Sexual Gender Based Violence in Kenya was developed under the auspices of the National Gender and Equality Commission in collaboration with LVCT Health, ITECH, and Center for Disease Control.

- The framework provides for the following:
 1. Mechanism for monitoring progress of response and prevention management programmes
 2. Systematic mechanism for coordination on sexual gender response and prevention mechanism
 3. Facilitate availability of credible and reliable data for policy and programme decision
 4. Facilitate timely submission of data for routine, periodic reporting for stakeholder’s consumption and international reporting.

- The framework takes cognizance and compliments other related national frameworks including:
 1. The National HIV and AIDS Monitoring, Evaluation and Research Framework (2009/10-2012/13);
 2. Monitoring and evaluation framework for Kenya Health Sector Strategic Investment Plan (July 2012- June 2018); and
 3. Vision 2030 implementation framework.
 4. The linkage between the National Multi-Sectoral Monitoring and Evaluation Framework for Response and Prevention of Gender and Sexual Gender Based Violence in Kenya and other related National frameworks for reporting purposes.
 5. A data base has been developed and is housed at NGEN whereupon all actors will be expected to provide data as per the M&E framework.

5.0 OBJECTIVE OF THE DUTY BEARER HANDBOOK

Despite the gains made, gaps and challenges in Gender Based Violence prevention and response still persist. These include limited funding by the National and County Governments to sustain Gender Based Violence prevention and response, lack of accountability by various stakeholders, lack of supported shelters and safe houses for Gender Based Violence survivors. Other challenges include gaps in service provision by various service providers, lack of centralized data and data management systems on Gender Based Violence and inadequate research on emerging trends on Gender Based Violence. In light of these gaps and challenges, the Working Group on Gender Based Violence launched the ‘Keeping the promise to End GBV Campaign’ on the 10th December 2014. The Working Group indentified the issue of the capacity of the various actors and prioritized the putting in place a duty bearer’s handbook that would clearly spell out duty bearers respective roles and enable them to effectively deliver on prevention and response to Gender Based Violence.

During 2015/2016, National gender and Equality Commission has spearheaded the Keeping the Promise End Gender Based Violence Campaign and dissemination of the first edition of the duty bearers’ handbook in 17 Counties. The information and lessons learned during the dissemination of the first edition have been used to enrich the reviewed handbook to make it more usable. In addition, this handbook having been revised in an election year (2017), it is fitting to include a section on prevention and response to gender based violence in politics (GBVP) and this has been done in ‘section’ 8.

It is envisioned that this handbook will be reviewed regularly to keep it current and relevant in the effort to prevent and respond to gender based violence.

It is therefore intended that the Duty Bearers Handbook will aid in the capacity enhancement of the various duty bearers to effectively prevent and respond to Gender Based Violence in all its manifestations and align practices with viable strategies and transformative goals. The Duty Bearers Handbook is also intended to enable the rights holders and stakeholders to know what services to expect from the respective duty bearers in order to hold them to account in relation to Gender Based Violence prevention and response. It is important to note that the work around Gender Based Violence in the National Government as well as at the Counties should be underpinned on the existing legal and policy frameworks, and especially the National Policy on the Prevention and Response to Gender Based Violence launched in November, 2014.

5.1 Target Audiences

In line with the “National Keeping the Promise End Gender Based Violence Campaign’s” objective to strengthen action and accountability by state actors in relation to their mandate on Gender Based Violence prevention and response, one of the activities of the first year of the campaign is the development of a duty bearer’s handbook. This handbook and all other editions have therefore been prepared for use by gender based violence duty bearers who have been identified for the purposes of the campaign’s first year/s of implementation. These are: The National Government (relevant ministries), County Governments, the Parliament, the Judiciary, Prosecutors, Police, Health Workers, Media and Teachers.

Faith Based Institutions, Civil Society and the Private Sector were also identified both as stakeholders and duty bearers. The key role of the Private Sector was identified as putting in place Gender Based Violence work place policies to protect both employees and stakeholders against Gender Based Violence. The key role of Faith Based Institutions and Civil Society were identified as:

- Complementing the government’s efforts in Gender Based Violence prevention and response
- Influencing policy and laws on ending Gender Based Violence
- Keeping the government in check on implementation of laws and policies and delivering services in connection with Gender Based Violence prevention and response.

The handbook provides basic information to State actors and the media as key duty bearers with regard to their respective roles and responsibilities in prevention and response to gender based violence. The handbook also provides basic information on how the duty bearers and stakeholders can assess the performance of the roles and responsibilities by the Key Duty Bearers.

6.0 KEY DUTY BEARERS OF GBV IDENTIFIED FOR THE PURPOSE OF THIS HANDBOOK

The key duty bearers identified for the purpose of this handbook are those actors who have a particular direct and indirect responsibility to respect, promote and realize human rights and to abstain from human rights violations with regard to Gender Based Violence. The key duty bearers identified for the purpose of this handbook are also those actors who have a particular obligation to respond in the event of an occurrence of Gender Based Violence. They include:

- National Government
 - The Cabinet
 - National Police Services
 - Prisons services
 - Department of Immigrations
- Ministry of Devolution and Planning
 - Kenya Bureau of statistics
- Ministry of Public Service, Youth and Gender Affairs
 - Gender Directorate

8.0 PREVENTING AND RESPONDING TO GENDER BASED VIOLENCE IN POLITICS

8.1 Introduction

Gender based violence in politics is a major challenge especially for women. While the general bad security situation in the country affects everyone, it prevents those who wish to participate in politics especially women from participating. Much of gender based violence in politics is directed at opponents but women face violence in politics just because they are women. This is referred to as violence against women in politics (VAWP). It usually occurs during electoral campaigns.

Gender based violence in politics and violence against women in politics limits political opportunities and discourages those against whom violence is directed or prevents them from exercising their political rights, as voters, candidates, party supporters or aspirants and subsequently as candidates. In the case of violence against women in politics (VAWP), the aim of is to discourage women’s political participation which translates to denying half of the population their political and civil rights.

8.2 Forms of Gender based violence in politics

Gender based violence in politics may take many forms; these include:

- Physical, psychological, verbal, sexual as well as economic violence;
- Intimidation;
- Sexist stereotypes and images portrayed particularly in the media, which rather than focusing on aspirants/candidate’s competence, capacity and contributions as leaders, emphasizes on bodies, sexuality and traditional social roles;
- Pressure to resign from their posts or relinquish their ambitions on the basis of gender.
- Gender stereotyping in politics.

Perpetrators of gender based violence in politics may include political opponents, state security apparatus, political parties, leaders, community members, the poor, the rich while the media may exacerbate the situation by perpetuating the violence.

Addressing violence against women in politics is primarily the responsibility of the government, through its three arms–legislature, executive, and the judiciary. In addition, political parties and the media also have a role to play.

GLOSSARY⁵

Duty bearer: Duty bearers are those actors who have a particular obligation or responsibility to respect, promote and realize human rights and to abstain from human rights violations. The term is most commonly used to refer to State actors, but non-State actors can also be considered duty bearers. Depending on the context, individuals (e.g. parents), local organizations, private companies, aid donors and international institutions can also be duty-bearers.

Rights-holders: Rights -holders are individuals or social groups that have particular entitlements in relation to specific duty-bearers. In general terms, all human beings are rights-holders under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. In particular contexts, there are often specific social groups whose human rights are not fully realized, respected or protected. More often than not, these groups tend to include women/girls, ethnic minorities, indigenous peoples, migrants and youth, for example.

Gender: Gender is a social and cultural construct, which distinguishes differences in the attributes of men and women, girls and boys, and accordingly refers to the roles and responsibilities of men and women. Gender based roles and other attributes, therefore, change over time and vary with different cultural contexts. The concept of gender includes the expectations held about the characteristics, aptitudes and likely behaviors of both women and men (femininity and masculinity). This concept is also useful in analyzing how commonly shared practices legitimize discrepancies between sexes

Sex Disaggregated Data: Sex- disaggregated data is data that is cross-classified by sex, presenting information separately for men and women, boys and girls. When data is not disaggregated by sex, it is more difficult to identify real and potential inequalities. Sex-disaggregated data is necessary for effective gender analysis.
